

Stand-Up Comedy Assignment - Kaviya

Stand-Up Comedy Set

This PDF contains a 5-minute stand-up comedy routine created with the help of ChatGPT. It also includes the prompt strategy used to guide the writing process and a link to the chat.

Final Stand-Up Comedy Script

"Good evening everyone! Or as college students call it—'the time I wake up.'

Man, college life is advertised like a dream. "Find yourself! Make lifelong friends! Learn new things!"

No. What they meant was: "Lose your mind! Make group chats that die in 2 messages! Learn how long a human can survive on Maggi and trauma."

Seriously, college is less of an academic journey and more of a low-budget reality show—"Survivor: University Edition."

1. Online Classes – The Glitch in the Matrix

"Let's talk about online classes.

Zoom classes really taught us something valuable: how NOT to make eye contact for 3 hours.

You're in your bed, half-asleep, and the professor asks, 'Any questions?'

I'm like, 'Yes, why am I paying full tuition for a YouTube tutorial with buffering?

And the tech issues! One guy's mic sounds like he's reporting live from a World War trench, another guy's video is so blurry we thought he turned into a Minecraft character.

And don't forget that awkward unmute moment.

You try to answer, but you're muted. You unmute, and now your mom's yelling in the background: "RAHUL, WHO TOOK MY TUPPERWARE?"

College from home? Nah. It's Family Bigg Boss featuring Google Meet."

2. Group Assignments – Survival of the Smartest

"Now let's talk about group assignments.

Oh boy, group projects—where one person does the work, and four others specialize in motivational quotes and moral support.

There's always that one guy: 'Bro, I'll handle the conclusion.'

Spoiler alert: He won't.

Another guy will disappear like he's in witness protection. Then magically reappear at submission time like, 'Hey guys, need any help?'

Yes, write your name. That's the help.

Group work really teaches you teamwork.

How to team up... and work alone."

3. Canteen Food – The Real Fear Factor

"Let's move to the college canteen.

The food is a mystery. It's like they throw ingredients into a cauldron and chant, 'TASTE IS OPTIONAL!'

One day I ordered "Paneer Butter Masala." What I got was red sauce with tofu's cousin who ran away from home.

And have you seen the names on the menu?

"Fusion Noodles" – That's code for 'leftover chow mein with ketchup and regret.'

And every drink is just 40% water, 40% sugar, and 20% whatever was in that container before.

Canteen food doesn't kill you. It builds your immunity... by poisoning you slowly."

4. Hostel Life – Adventures in Insanity

"Ah yes, hostel life.

Where privacy is a myth and personal space is shared property.

I had a roommate who would brush his teeth... while watching crime documentaries.

Every morning I'd wake up to 'This is how she chopped the body into 14 pieces...'

I didn't sleep. I blinked aggressively for 6 hours.

And the bathrooms? Bro, I've seen haunted houses cleaner than that.

There's always one tap that leaks, one bucket with a crack, and that one guy who sings Arijit Singh at 6AM like it's Indian Idol.

Hostel rooms are like escape rooms—but the only escape is graduation or death."

5. Exam Pressure – The Ultimate Survival Game

"And now... exams.

Exam season turns every student into a philosopher:

'What even is time? What is life? Can I pass with grace marks and God's plan?'

We all say we'll study in advance.

Then we blink—and it's the night before the exam and you're on your fifth cup of coffee reading Chapter 1 like it's Game of Thrones.

And group studies? Hah.

That's just four people staring at a book, and one guy saying: 'Bro, let's take a break. I found a quiz—Which type of paratha are you?'

And after all the anxiety, you finally enter the exam hall and the question paper looks like it was leaked from a different syllabus... in a parallel universe.

But hey, at least now we know—'Panic attacks burn calories.'

[Closing – Bring It Home]

"College life is wild.

It's the only place where you're broke, tired, confused... and somehow still having the best time of your life.

We may not remember every formula...

But we'll never forget that one guy who wore a lungi to class, the midnight Maggi bonding, and the eternal Wi-Fi struggle.

So here's to college—where every struggle is real, but every memory is hilariously worth it.

Thank you, you've been amazing! And if you're still in college—good luck. You're gonna need it!"

Prompt Strategy

Prompt 1: "Write a sarcastic joke about online college classes"

Used for joke about professors being holograms

Prompt 2: "Write a sarcastic joke about group assignments"

Developed group chat joke: 'Done bro?'

Prompt 3: "Write a sarcastic joke about hostel food"

Inspired toxic relationship metaphor

Prompt 4: "Write a sarcastic joke about exams"

Used line: 'Read 5 months of notes in 5 hours'

Prompt 5: "Write a sarcastic transition for all these jokes"

Created the 'college = reality show' metaphor

Final Prompt: "Help me organize all jokes into a 5-minute routine"

Resulted in structured flow and polished delivery

Chat Link:

You can access the full conversation used to create this set here:

<https://chatgpt.com/share/6847f821-4ea4-8007-a30c-cc1e73d3f254>